

MYSTICISM MEETS MODERNITY

Overview

BABYLON by Harry-Paul brings artful asymmetry and uncompromising modernity to the outdoor living room. A perfect complement to any DEDON dining or lounge setting, this iconic collection consists of much more than mere accessories. The sculptural luminaire is made of translucent, rotomolded polyethylene and is a real eye-catcher.

Inspiration

In developing BABYLON's striking form, Harry-Paul cites inspirations as diverse as the 16th-Century Dutch painting Tower of Babel, by Pieter Bruegel the Elder, and a pair of soft suede boots the designer owned in the 1980s. Striving to give the individual pieces in the collection the appearance of hand-crafted one-offs, he dove deep into complex algorithms and advanced rotomolding techniques.

Characteristics

Characterized by its ribbed, asymmetrical, seemingly collapsing forms, BABYLON is the result of years of development and no shortage of imagination or perseverance.

The LED element of the robust luminaire made of rotomolded polyethylene can be dimmed in eight steps via a convenient remote control. As a decorative element for outdoor and indoor use, it has a warm white correlated color temperature (2700 Kelvin).

It has an ingress protection marking for LED Module by IP64, which means it is dustproof, splash proof and therefore fully suitable for outdoor use. The material is 100% recyclable, very lightweight and yet robust.

Quotations

“I always try to push the limits in terms of materials, technology and imagination,” explains Harry-Paul. “That’s why it’s critical to have a partner like DEDON, that understands the value of going the extra distance.” DEDON’s Marketing Director, Chloe Sos, agrees that the effort was worth it. “With BABYLON,” she says, “we’re able to help our customers to create outdoor living rooms that are both stunning and unique.”

Designer

Known for the air of mystery that surrounds his objects, Dutch-born, Barcelona-based Harry-Paul is an exemplar of vibrant design in the 21st Century. His bold, imaginative, forward-looking approach involves experimentation with materials, technologies and typologies, as evidenced by his BABYLON planters, side tables and lighting units for DEDON.
